Christian Faith in a World of Climate Change

CASTLE STREET METHODIST CHURCH, CAMBRIDGE • 25 OCTOBER 2008

With much of the basic knowledge about climate change and its causes now widely accepted, this one-day conference aims to take the issues one step further within a context of Christian belief and reflection.

The conference aims to stimulate thought on the Christian response to the enormous and complex challenges presented by climate change and will also provide learning opportunities on a range of practical and theoretical issues through presentations and workshops.

Although this event is geared towards people of Christian faith and commitment, those of other faiths or none are welcome to attend.

Speakers include:

Rev Dr Lance Stone

Minister of Emmanuel and Cherry Hinton Road United Reformed Churches and former tutor of pastoral theology at Westminster College

Rev Dr Malcolm Brown

Head of Mission and Public Affairs Division, Anglican Archbishop's Council

Fabiola Blum

Biodiversity partnership coordinator for Cambridgeshire and Peterborough, Catholic/Methodist layperson

Dr Keith Tovey

Reader in Environmental Sciences, University of East Anglia

Rev Nigel Cooper

Chaplain of Anglia Ruskin University, Co-ordinator of Eco-congregation
